Melrose Train Station – early 1900's

We see Florida as a place struggling to stay true to itself — struggling to maintain an honest identity. We, like everybody else, want luxuries and conveniences too, but we think it is possible to pay too much for them. Sometimes, we think that what we are getting is not as good as what we are losing.

—Al Burt (1927-2008), beloved author and past president of HMI.
